About the Commission

The Productivity Commission is the Australian Government's independent research and advisory body on a range of economic, social and environmental issues affecting the welfare of Australians. It contributes by providing quality, independent advice and information to governments, and on the communication of ideas and analysis. Read more about the Commission

Duties

We welcome interest from professionals who can bring expertise in a range of areas, such as:

- Administrative and project support
- Communications
- Executive support
- Finance
- Human Resources
- Information Communication and Technology (ICT)
- Library services
- Media
- Office services
- Publications
- Web development, digital design and/or social media.

Eligibility for employment

To be eligible for employment in the Commission, applicants must:

- be an Australian citizen
- satisfy a National Australian Federal Police Records check
- satisfy any mandatory qualification requirements applicable to the position
- satisfy any required conditions of engagement, such as a probationary period.

Academic qualifications and/or accreditations in a related field may be essential or desirable, dependent on the types of vacancies that arise.

* Ongoing opportunities may be available to existing ongoing Australian Public Service employees under section 26 of the Public Service Act 1999.

Assessment

Where a vacancy arises, your application may be reviewed by HR, a delegate, or members of a selection committee. If you are invited for further assessment, this may include:

- an interview with the selection committee
- a work-related test, or submission of a concise statement about the role in question
- referee checks.

We will acknowledge receipt of your application via email and may contact you should a suitable vacancy arise that matches your skills and interests as detailed in your application.

What we offer

We have a supportive, respectful and engaging work environment and high-performance culture, underpinned by:

- a commitment to diversity and inclusion — valuing people with different backgrounds, experiences and perspectives
- a collaborative, flexible work environment — recognising the importance of balancing work commitments with family, caring and other personal commitments outside work
- a focus on continuous improvement and innovation — with a culture of conversation and real-time feedback, and learning and development opportunities tailored to individuals' needs at different points in their careers
- interesting and engaging work — in an environment of critical thinking, curiosity and intellectual rigour.

The Commission offers a competitive salary plus generous leave provisions, with employer superannuation contributions of 15.4%.

For information relating to salary and other employment entitlements, please refer to the current Productivity Commission Enterprise Agreement and the Chair's section 24\(1\) Determination.
